

Deportees get off a bus at an immigration facility Jan. 11 after a flight arrived in San Salvador, El Salvador, with immigrants who were in the U.S. without documents. (CNS/Reuters/Jose Cabezas)

by NCR Staff

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

January 26, 2018

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint
Soundcloud

Saint Mary's Press of Minnesota and the Center for Applied Research in the Apostolate (CARA) at Georgetown University recently released a study on young Catholics who have left the church and now identify as "nones." The report is attempting to understand why so many have "disaffiliated" from the faith they were born into.

Immigration issues remain in headlines this week as President Donald Trump proposes to replace family reunification, or "chain migration," with a merit-based system, and Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) recipients and those living with temporary protected status await answers about their future in the United States.

On the show today:

- Julie Bourbon, NCR contributor, based in Washington, D.C.
- NCR Bertelsen intern Maria Benevento
- Suzanne Gladney, founder of the Migrant Farmworkers Assistance Fund in Kansas City, Missouri

Background reading:

- A new report on disaffiliated Catholics comes at a time when more young people than ever before are leaving the church.
- Kerri Miller of Minnesota Public Radio moderated a discussion in Baltimore of the new report published by Saint Mary's Press.
- Family-based immigration, or family reunification, also called chain migration, has been a central component of the U.S. immigration system for more than 50 years, and is restricted and usually slow-moving.
- Temporary protected status will be terminated for El Salvador in 2019, and advocates are working to protect the hundreds of thousands of immigrants who could be uprooted from U.S. communities and forced to return to dangerous countries.
- We say: Catholics have a special obligation to safeguard vulnerable immigrants. These times demand a loud, bold defense of migrants.

How do I listen?

We can let you know when new podcast episodes are published. Sign up for emails here.

From your iPhone or iPad: Open the preloaded app called "Podcasts." It has a purple icon. If you're reading this from your phone, tap this link, which will take you straight there. (You can also use the magnifying glass icon to search; type "NCR in Conversation.") Once you're on the series page, you can tap on an episode title to play it. Tap on the "subscribe" button to have new episodes sent to your phone. If you prefer another podcast player, you can find "NCR in Conversation" there. (Here's the RSS feed.)

From your Android phone or tablet: You can listen and subscribe using the preloaded Google Play app. If you're reading this from your phone, tap this link to play the latest episode and learn more about the app.

From your desktop or laptop: You can also simply press the play button above to listen on this page. Make sure to keep this window open on your browser, or the audio will stop. You can always find the latest episode of NCR in Conversation at NCRonline.org/podcast.

Advertisement