

by Teresa Malcolm

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

May 23, 2019

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

It may have suffered a setback in the Senate, but the Green New Deal is still a big part of the public conversation. That includes among religious communities working to address climate change: Faith-based environmentalists see hope in Green New Deal goals. Catholics in particular are analyzing how the proposed plan aligns with Catholic social teaching.

Pundits criticized James Carroll's Atlantic article, but did they try to understand him? Jason Steidl says that defensive responses to Carroll's essay on the priesthood failed to recognize the pain of many lay Catholics as the sexual abuse scandal has unfolded.

As US associates track to surpass women religious, both face 'turning point'. GSR reports on this bittersweet transition in the making, as aging sisters look to associates to carry on the order's charism.

It only took 50 years to learn: Sr. Nancy Linenkugel got some perspective at a class reunion for her public high school.

ICYMI: Tom Roberts' NCR Connections column continues the conversation on hierarchy and the need for a 'culture of vulnerability' in the effort to deal with the causes of the abuse crisis.

Advertisement

*Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter?
Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy
Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.*