

Culture

Singer-songwriter Gina Chavez poses for a photo in January. She is the only woman nominated for a Latin Grammy in the pop/rock album category this year — a category that has been dominated by men since its inception in 2012, she said. (Ismael Quintanilla III)

by Stephanie Yeagle

View Author Profile

syeagle@ncronline.org

Follow on Twitter at @ncrSLY

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

June 25, 2021

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

NCR Culture, a conversation on books, TV, films and more, continues this month with guest Gina Chavez, a Latin Grammy nominee and recording artist. NCR opinion editor Olga Segura spoke with Chavez about her music, faith and LGBTQ+ Catholic representation.

Latin Grammy nominee and recording artist Gina Chavez appears on NCR Culture with opinion editor Olga Segura. (NCR screenshot/YouTube)

Background reading:

- Chavez talks to NCR about her identity as a queer, multi-ethnic Latinx Catholic who attends Mass with her wife in Austin. Her latest album, "La Que Manda," is nominated for a Latin Grammy award for best pop/rock album.

For more culture coverage, subscribe to Olga's newsletter, Culture Weekly. Every Saturday, you'll get links to the latest culture coverage on NCR as well as Olga's favorite music, TV and books.

Advertisement